Static in Fayetteville— The Wicked Telephone Queen And the 7,000 Campus Dwarfs

THERE'S grievous trouble up at Fayetteville, seat of the University of Arkansas.

I have a communication from Earnie Wright and Talbot Feild, Jr., of our town explaining that the Southwestern Bell Telephone company has installed pay-phones in all the public places of Fayetteville—and free phone service for the campus ladies and gentlemen has vanished.

Whether the business men of the university seat connived with the telephone company to control the free phone abuse, or whether the telephone company arbitrarily installed its pay stations, I don't propose to say.

But here is Mr. Wright's and Mr. Feild's communication, followed by the circular of an outraged student body:

Germany in Open Threat to Seize Czecho-Slovakia

Pretext Will Be 3 1/2 Mil-

EUROPE WATCHING

France, Russia Bound by Treaties to Defend
Czecho-Slovakia

BERLIN, Germany.—(A)—A prediction that Czechoslovakia's 3,500,000 Germans soon would demand "inevitable" union with Germany was made Wednesday night by a German official of cabinet rank.

"The only question is whether it can be done without shedding blood," he said. "If shots should be fired in connection with the Czechoslovakia problem, the first will not come from Germany but from Poland," he added without elaborating this point.

(There are some 80,000 Poles in eastern Czechoslovakia in the region near the Polish frontier.)

"We firmly believe the Sudeten question will be settled between Germany and the Czechs without application of forcible measures, because Sudeten Germans simply will demand to join their natural fatherland."

These Sudeten (Czech) Germans live in the horseshoe-shaped, mountainous region which circles the western half of Czechoslovakia jutting into Germany.

Hint Thrown Out

"If the Czechs realized that France and England do not care to squander the lives of their soldiers for a foreign state, the Czechs, too, would settle matters with Germany by ceding the Sudeten regions," the official said.

He asserted that one of the chief concerns of German diplomacy was how to make France understand she would be violating an agreement if she declined to come to Czechoslovakia's aid in event of a crisis. He said:

"If the French can be made to understand that people of the same blood and language have the right to form one nation, they will go forward toward the pacification of Europe which has been taken."

France and Soviet Russia are bound to Czechoslovakia in a military defense alliance.

Appointment District Leader

The German press campaign against Czechoslovakia continued unabated, with emphasis upon the necessity for speedy action.

"Neither the spiritual nor the material distress in which Sudeten Germans find themselves will work further delay," said Nachrichtenblatt in a comment typical of the tenor of the government-directed press.

The press announced that Hans Krebs, 50, formerly of Ighite, Czechoslovakia, had been given the rank of gaudier, or district leader. This was a rank similar to that held by Julius Streicher for the Saar and town, temporarily, for Austria and Erich Koch for East Prussia. Krebs was given no rank, or province, to administer, but the general deduction was that his job soon would present itself as that of gaudier for the Sudeten German region.

An exile from Czechoslovakia, Krebs was a deputy in the Czech Parliament from 1925 to 1933, when he resigned his seat after serving a four-month jail sentence on charges of subversive activity.

Hitler placed his name on the list of candidates for the Reichstag during the election campaign of March, 1930, and Krebs was elected.

Centerville Play

"Red-headed Step-Child" is the title of a play to be given in the Centerville community Saturday night, May 14. The proceeds will go to the church building fund.

Fears Aim to "Distract Attention" From Economic Affairs

WAGES-BILL PLEA

Right-of-Way Asked in House by Chairman Labor Committee

WASHINGTON.—(A)—Senator LaFollette, Wisconsin Progressive, expressed the belief in the senate Thursday that the $1,156,546,000 naval expansion program originated with President Roosevelt and not the Navy department.

Denouncing the program, he told the senate he did not believe there had been any development that would justify expanding the Navy.

He said there was a "growing fear" among many people that the naval expansion program might be designed to "distract attention" from domestic economic affairs.

The administration's Business Advisory Council, Secretary Roper said Thursday, will be asked at its May 12 meeting to arrange a meeting with President Roosevelt of the 16 business leaders who promised their aid in establishing economic stability.

Chairman Morton, New Jersey Democrat, of the house labor committee, declared Thursday that the revamped wages and hours bill was the "most fair and equitable" one her committee could draft.

Mrs. Morton made this declaration in urging the house rules committee, which bottled up the original wage and hour bill for months last year, to give the revised measure the legislative "green light."

F. D. Doing Best He Can, Ford Believes

Conditions Will Chage for the Better, Manufacturer Says

NEW YORK.—(A)—Henry Ford, fresh from his White House conference with President Roosevelt, told interviewers Thursday that the president "is trying to do the best he can, like everybody else."

Of the conference itself Ford would say nothing.

Conditions generally are going to change, he said, and change for the better.

He said he doubted if there will be war in Europe despite gloomy dispatches from abroad.

Ford Meets F. D.

WASHINGTON.—(A)—President Roosevelt and Henry Ford, a leading dissenter to Rooseveltian policy, devoted two hours to a "pleasant family conversation" Wednesday.

For an hour they talked at luncheon in the "family dining room" at the White House and continued the conversation another hour in the president's study upstairs. Then, with associates elbowing newspapermen aside, the motor magnate left the White House, entered a limousine and drove to Union Station to keep an engagement in New York tonight.

No Statements

"What did you talk about?—how did you get along?—did you give him any advice?" the reporters shouted at Ford during his scramble across the broad front portico of the White House.

"We don't do that" was Ford's reply, and he waved his questioners away with jerky little gestures of his right arm. He apparently meant that he didn't divulge his discussions with presidents.

"Was it pleasant?" a reporter asked.

"Sure."

The White House was equally firm about declining to say what the two had talked about.

"There will be no statement here, either now or later," said Stephen T. Early, the president's secretary.

G. Hall Roosevelt, a brother of Mrs. Roosevelt, who was instrumental in arranging the meeting and was one of those present, told the reporters the discussion involved "nothing that smacked of commercialism."

"It was just a pleasant family conversation, such as they have at the Wayside Inn," he said, referring to the old Massachusetts homestead which Ford recently restored.

Leaped to Stardom as Child Liar in Film 'These Three'

Jump From Kid to Adult Roles Will Be Easy for Her

"VETERAN" ACTRESS

Seven Years on Screen and Three on Legitimate Stage

By PAUL HARRISON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD.—Two years ago Bonita Granville was the bell-child of Hollywood, a malevolent little meemie extravagantly praised for her evil deeds in "These Three." The picture lifted her at once to the top rank of character players, and she has remained there ever since by dint of more villainy and an occasional venture into sweetness and light.

"But now," wailed Miss Granville, "I'm 15. It's the most unattractive age in the world! Oh, it is, but definitely. Last year I was a little girl, and next year I'll be an ingenue. But what am I today?"

15-Year-Old "Vet"

Sitting there in her dressing room and watching her steady hair for the next scene, anybody could have told Miss Granville what she is today—a very attractive, if very young, woman. But her into adult clothes and hairdresses, and higher heels, and she could play a college senior.

Nor could you guess her age by listening to her talk. Most movie youngsters are conversationally sure of themselves, but Bonita is a veteran with the confidence of seven years on the stage. Apparently she is one of the very rare child actresses who is able to progress from juvenile to adult roles without a break.

Under her Warner Brothers' contract and frequent loan-outs to other studios, she has been very busy, with a total of three weeks off in eight months. "I don't mind, really," she said. "But I would like to get in a little more swimming."

"Pretty soon I'm going to start a series of pictures—the Nancy Drew stories. They're about a girl of my age who's the daughter of a famous lawyer. She gets into adventures and becomes an amateur detective and solves a lot of cases. They're good movie stuff, and series are awfully popular these days. And I'll be featured in them, which is something."

"No, there isn't much romance in them. There is a boy, who keeps popping up at the right time and doing what I tell him. I had a little romance in 'White Banners,' that we finished lately. In a scene with Jack Cooper, he kisses me on the forehead. It was the first picture in which I've ever been kissed. That gave the publicity department an idea and it tried to work up an off-stage romance."

B. & B. Grocery to Open on Saturday

Byers and Baber Have Grocery-Market on East Third St.

Hope's newest cash grocery and meat market—the B. & B. Grocery—will be formally opened with free souvenirs this Saturday, May 30, in quarters just east of B. R. Mann Motor company and opposite Hempstead County Motor company, on East Third street.

"B. & B." stands for the proprietors—R. E. Byers and Dewey Baber, both well known figures in the local grocery and meat trade.

They have newly equipped and redecorated the East Third street location, and will handle a complete line of meats, groceries of all kinds, fancy and staple, and a complete line of produce.

They plan to truck fresh vegetables from the Rio Grande Valley to Hope, offering fresh vegetables more cheaply.

Mr. Byers is a native of Hope, and has been engaged for several years in trucking, groceries and meats.

Mr. Baber was with a local chain grocery for five years, and spent two years with Dudley Flour & Feed Co.

Pete Shields, their market manager, was reared in Hope, and has had 14 years' experience with a local independent grocer, and other service with a local chain market.

Kansas City Dean Is Choice as Episcopal Bishop for Arkansas

HELENA, Ark.—(A)—The Arkansas Episcopal diocesan convention Thursday unanimously elected the Rev. Claude W. Sprouse, 50, dean of grace at Holy Trinity cathedral, Kansas City, to succeed Bishop E. W. Saphore, resigned.

The election came on the convention's fifth ballot after the names of Dean John Williamson, Little Rock, and Dr. A. R. McKinstry, San Antonio, Texas, had been withdrawn.

George C. Merkel, Pine Bluff Chamber of Commerce secretary, was ordained into the priesthood of the Episcopal church at the convention Thursday.

The Rev. Mr. Merkel is now in charge of missions at Stuttgart and Toliville.

Japs Again Close to Lunghai Road

Japan's re-invigorated army was reported Thursday to have driven within 10 miles of the Lunghai railway after regaining ground lost early this month in its greatest reverse.

Europe's Democracies

LONDON, Eng.—(A)—The premiers and foreign ministers of Britain and France Thursday plunged into a two-day effort to work out in personal conference solutions to central European and other threats to world peace.

Alternatively they considered means of self-preservation in the event of war, and much closer co-operation of all fighting services of the two powers was expected to be the major development of the conference.

Jap Thrust at Russia

SHANGHAI, China.—(A)—Japanese forces have begun a drive into Mo-hammedan Northwest China, where Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek has called upon Chinese Moslems to rally to his standard.

The new drive, in the direction of Outer Mongolian spheres of Soviet Russian influence, apparently is designed to seize the ancient Silk caravan routes which have been used to bring Russian war supplies to Chiang's armies.

In the southern Shanlung province area of major hostilities, Japanese told of minor advances against the Lung-hai railway, east-west communication line through Central China.

Japs Advance in North

In the campaign into Mo-hammedan northwest provinces, Japanese reported capture of Anpei, in Suiyuan province, 50 miles northwest of the previous limit of their drive. Military force previously had carried Japanese influence halfway across Inner Mongolia. The new battle ground was within 100 miles of Outer Mongolia, under Soviet influence.

It was believed Japanese might attempt by political intrigue or otherwise to set up in Ningxia, Tsinghai and western Kansu provinces a buffer area through which Russian war supplies to China would flow with difficulty.

China has launched a propaganda campaign to counteract Japanese activity, sending Chinese Moslems to the area to preach war against the Japanese. Some of China's costliest and most sanguinary civil wars have been between soldiers of China, proper, and Mohammedans of the borderland.

Mexico Reduces Tariff Upon U. S.

Gesture of Friendship Wipes Out Recent High Charges

WASHINGTON.—(A)—Mexico intends to make a gesture of friendship to the United States by appreciable reduction of tariffs, officials said Wednesday. Undersecretary of State Welles said that Francisco Najera, the Mexican ambassador, informed him the reduction was being prepared to take effect May 1.

At the State Department this was interpreted as an amicable move which it was hoped would facilitate settlement of questions arising from the expropriation of American oil properties. The reduction will repair some, if not all, the injury done American commerce when Mexico, in January, imposed tariff increases ranging up to 200 per cent and more.

Bishops' College Urges Union, But Opposition Grows

Senator Glass of Virginia Joins Ranks of Southern Opponents

FEAR CHURCH SPLIT

Unification Plan to Be Up to Southern Methodists Friday

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(A)—Union with the Northern Methodists, decried by opponents as likely of church destruction, was "commended" Thursday to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in a history-making address from the college of bishops.

The address embodied recommendations of the bishops to the general conference and "commended" the unification plan to be formally presented Friday.

The voice of Carter Glass, Virginia Democratic senator and publisher, was added Wednesday to those opposing union of Southern and Northern Methodists, a church question slated for final showdown in the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, convening here Thursday.

Bishop Collins Denny, foe of the merger plan, said Senator Glass wrote him, as follows:

"I am writing to assure you that I completely participate in the view presented by you and Bishop Candler concerning the proposed union of the Southern and Northern Methodist churches."

Bishop Warren A. Candler of Atlanta, Ga., has joined Bishop Denny in opposing the plan. Other Methodists, in the South and North Episcopal and in the Protestant divisions, have approved the merger, which would bring together in "the Methodist church" approximately 8,000,000 members.

Senator Glass is a steward of the historic Court Street Methodist church at Lynchburg, Va., and is named for a Methodist minister, Dr. David Carter, Bishop Denny said.

First Dissent Likely

Unification will become an official issue before the 472 delegates to the General Conference with the reading of the Episcopal address by Bishop Hoyt M. Dobbs Thursday at the first general session. It has been an open secret that Bishops Candler and Denny, both retired, would dissent from the address, the first time in church history there has been a disagreement among bishops on the text of the address.

Actual debate on the plan is scheduled for Friday morning. A two-thirds majority is required for passage, following approval of the required three-fourths of those voting in the annual conferences.

Group Endorses Program

Dr. W. P. Few, president of Duke University and chairman of the General Board of Lay Activities, announced "unanimous endorsement" of unification by his group.

The General Board is made up of the lay leaders of all the annual conferences. Dr. Few said two ex-members of the board opposed the plan of union at the group's meeting here.

The Ways of Peace Need Color

THE man would do the world an invaluable service who could make the adventures and excitements of the mind's struggle with mankind's problems as attractive as the jingoes can occasionally make organized mutual slaughter, to young men who are a certain distance removed from it.

"Candid shots"—photographs and literary—have doubtless performed a considerable service in bringing repeatedly to the young man's attention the ghastly, degrading business warfare actually is. But how vividly do such reminders remain in the consciousness when the more brightly colored offerings of the professional "drum-beaters" are brought into competition with them?

ONCE that infectious martial music starts hammering away, once the output of pictures—again, camera pictures and word pictures—acquires a romantic air, will those grimmer pictures remain in the mind?

They may. They are hard to forget. But mightn't the tactic of having made adventurous and admirable the struggles of civilized men's intellects toward peaceful solutions... more adventurous and admirable than slaughter... go a long way toward determining the youthful mind to keep right on resisting that call to primitive battle?

FROM Spain come descriptions of young Carlists, "Requetés," followers of the "Flange," going into battle full of the "crusading spirit." You read that they "look to the sixteenth century for inspiration," and something about it sounds romantic. The Loyalists with whom they struggle are as certain they are fighting for the preservation of civilization as are their enemies. Sometimes it almost sounds worthwhile.

"It is impressive to note that so many young Spaniards deeply believe in something," you read. Whatever became of that deep belief in peace?

Why cannot a belief in rational conduct be universally inspired, a belief so deep that it can be transformed into a stronger passion than war's?

A positive belief in reason, an intense passion for it, would help the work of the "candid shots" along. But somebody may have to figure a way of making civilized conduct look exciting.

Patched Friendships

A WOMAN in Chicago who made a giant quilt out of scraps of celebrities' wearing apparel has refused the offers of a number of museums, explaining that the quilt was made for her granddaughter, Nancy.

What proportion of the world's celebrity population is represented may be suggested by the facts that the quilt took more than six years to make, and holds some 10 million stitches.

The lady's devotion to her task and her granddaughter is thoroughly laudable, but can't somebody who is accomplished in such things break the news to her, in a tactful and gentle way, about the susceptibility of the child mind to sensory impressions, especially in the relaxed state just preceding sleep?

Nancy will get the quilt as soon as she is "old enough to appreciate it," her grandmother says. When she is old enough to appreciate it, how is she going to be able to get to sleep under it, and if she does get to sleep, what kind of dreams is she going to have?

Patches have been contributed by the following celebrities, among others: Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, Charlie McCarthy, General John J. Pershing, Mae West, President Roosevelt, ex-President Hoover, and Rear Admiral Byrd, not to mention a number of the crowned heads of Europe.

If Nancy can drift off into untroubled slumbers after a thoughtful glance at a cozy gathering like that, even if it's only a gathering by proxy, Nancy deserves the world's most extraordinary quilt.

Insufficient Vitamin A May Affect Vision

Vitamin A is one of the most widely distributed of the vitamins in relation to the diet that people usually consume. For this reason it has been commonly believed that adults do not need any extra vitamin A, unless they have symptoms indicating that there is a real deficiency.

Recently, however, some studies have been made on the effects of lack of vitamin A in the diet, which indicate that the deficiency may be wider than has been suspected in the past.

Vitamin A is a fat-soluble vitamin. We get most of it in our diet from animal sources, like liver, milk, butter, fish, and the carotene that is found in yellow or green pigmented fruits and vegetables. Vitamin A is found also in cod liver oil, and particularly in halibut liver oil.

When animals are fed diets that are satisfactory in every other way but deficient in the amount of vitamin A, they develop degenerative changes in some of the cells of the body that are known as the epithelial cells, those which are on the surface of the skin, and of the mucous membrane. Obviously, damage of this kind to the cells makes it possible for germs to attack them.

In addition, vitamin A is definitely associated with that portion of the eye which is concerned with light and adaptation to darkness. For that very reason, night blindness or inability to see well with dim degrees of illumination is an early symptom of vitamin A deficiency.

A person who does not get enough vitamin A is unable to develop the material called visual purple in the eye as rapidly as does a person who has enough vitamin A. Extreme glare or brightness of the light will use up the visual purple rapidly, resulting in conditions like snow blindness or sun blindness. This can be detected by the use of a device called the photometer, sometimes even before the person realizes that anything is wrong.

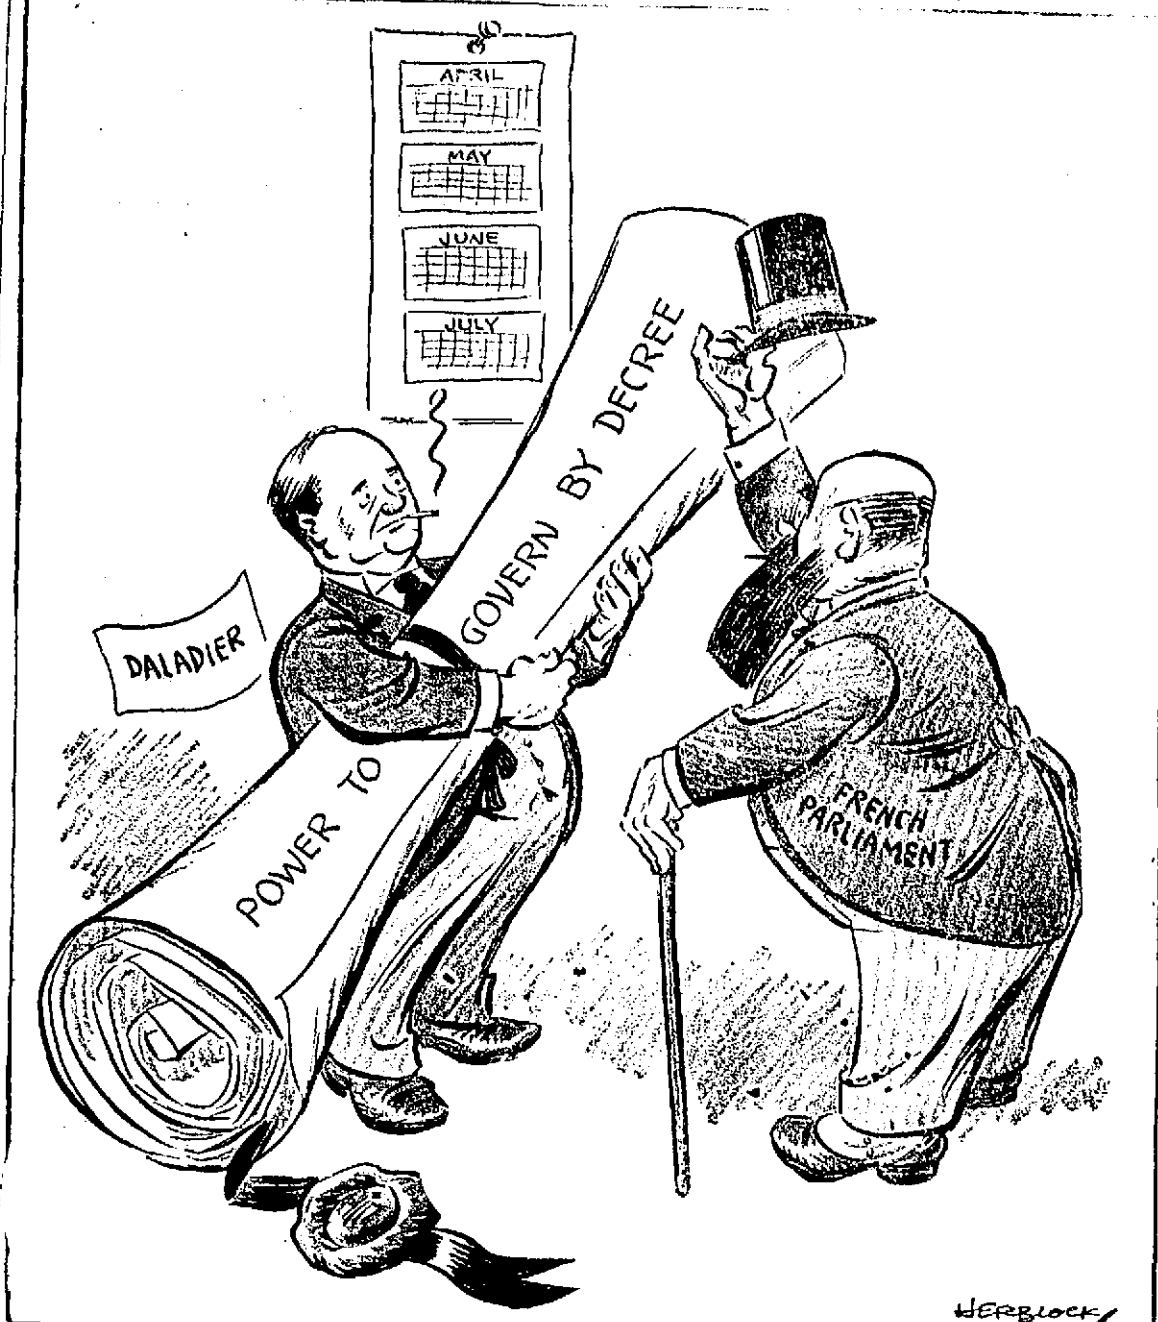

Other signs include dryness of the eye, resulting eventually in the condition called xerophthalmia. Any specialist in diseases of the eye can tell by a study of the eye with reflected light whether or not changes in the conjunctiva are occurring.

The skin, in cases of deficiency of vitamin A which are severe, may also have a dryness with itching and scaling.

Students of the Boston University School of Medicine were examined to find out whether or not there was any deficiency of vitamin A in their diets. Many of them had symptoms which indicated a lack of this vitamin.

Young Optimist Trades a Smile for a Frown

This morning Tommy had gone to school under a cloud. The baby was sick and everyone had to skimpish for breakfast. Besides daddy had missed his bus by coming back for a forgotten brief case. He was cross, mother was tired and upset and Martha, Tommy's sister, slapped him for using her tablet. Then daddy accused Tommy of moving the briefcase, calling him a trial and a nuisance.

Looking inside the briefcase to see that nothing had been disturbed, Mr. Brown took out a paper covered with figures. It was the page torn from Martha's tablet, and Tommy had not put it there. Nor had he touched the tablet at all. Martha saw it, too, so that was that. Daddy banged out and the children got off to school somehow.

Tommy said "Good morning" to Miss Simpson and then, instead of going into the cloak room, flung his cap from the doorway toward a hook. A hit, by Jimmy. He turned and glanced at his pal, Terry, and giggled his hands at his ears. Miss Simpson could have pretended not to see, but she chose to look. She made Tommy get his cap, go back to the door, and "come in like a gentleman."

Tommy got his lessons done as well as any small boy with lofty spirits usually does, and only stamped a little on the stairs going out.

There was no butter in the house, for lunch, so he had to go for some. He stopped to admire the display in a store window. Knives, ball bats and skates. More complaints.

Next he whistled and woke the baby. He spilled jelly on the tablecloth. He did lots of things. But he didn't mind much. The sun was out and there was a fair wind. After

The day went on. He had a little fun in the lot with Terry and then went home. Now he was scolded because he was dirty. Martha was low in her mind, the way girls get when there's work to do. Daddy was fuming about a bill.

No one but his friend Terry had smiled at Tommy that whole day. Yet Tommy had had a smile for everybody. He was dispensing cheer, as well as a little mischief, wherever he went. The born optimist.

Children forget and forgive more easily than grown-ups. But do we appreciate their smiles? The personal optimist deserves something better, I think.

Great Charm of Childhood
Is Frankness

The most beautiful thing about childhood is its spontaneity. This means the uncontrived and unprepared art of living.

Reactions now are quick and genuine, and behavior is not carefully planned ahead, as happens with older people. The child lives in the moment, likes things quickly, and is as quick to reject. He enjoys to the fullest everything he sees or does. He only loses his spontaneity when he is too constantly retrained. Then he begins to calculate and weigh. He holds back and becomes repressed.

Naturally there are certain things he is learning with each day's experience, that warn against repeating his own good sense and ideas of fairness, however, tell him that he must not be too utterly at large. He rather likes to know what is allowed and what is not allowed, as long as it leaves him a wide range for happiness.

Spirit Is Precious

This spontaneity in children is a precious thing and should be cherished. There is no beauty in the over-regulation of too perfect discipline. It robs our little folk of their natural brightness—frankness. The child who can look us squarely in the eye and utter his inmost thoughts is a treasure indeed. Why do we hush him so often? Why do we have to look behind his honesty and criticize? I believe that our overanxiety to teach politeness and correctness, superficially, I mean, often accounts for a certain loss of honesty.

Mother, the brash conduct over which you shudder is merely "spontaneity," much of the time. The child who fondles her baby doll's curls may hate her own straight hair and get the scissors one day and do a little hairbering on her own head. She is not being deliberately naughty, but just acting on a quick impulse to change her appearance. Why punish her?

Children Are Honest

It requires a great deal of sorting to be able to tell when a child is being merely impulsive or motivated by planned thought. But when unexpected things happen, and they always do with our unpredictable children, then please allow for nature.

Who can help admiring the little boy or girl who speaks out honestly? Yet, while they are still quite young, we expect these children to know what to say in meeting and what not to say.

Spontaneity can be guided but should be allowed to live. It is one thing to condition or discipline a child, but another to squeeze out all his responses to life, which, once he learns to conceal them, makes him an actor playing an artificial part that is not his real self.

Random Notes of a Wonderer—Beals Remembers Excitement

Reporter, novelist but above all wanderer, Carleton Beals has been pretty much on the move for the last 20 years. The result is a remarkable series of experiences, most of which he seems to have correlated between the covers of his latest book, "Glass Houses" (Lippincott; $3.50).

Actually the volume consists of the recollections of a free-lancer, so if the author rambles a bit, as he most certainly does, he is to be excused. As a matter of fact, Mr. Beals rambles from Mexico to Spain, to Italy, back to America, Mexico and Nicaragua again.

Exactly 20 years ago Mr. Beals first barked into Mexico City, when revolution was at its height and the macabre corpses of the populace dotted every other tree. He stayed three years, followed the tragic course of Carranza, saw the emergence of Obregon.

This portion of his book is eminently graphic, and coupled with his experiences in Mexico a few years later provides a penetrating picture of the upheaval below the Rio Grande.

In 1920, Beals went to Spain, then Italy, saw the march on Rome and came away with some very biting con-

Paul Harrison in Hollywood

Theater Was No Dead End For "Dead End" Boy

HOLLYWOOD.—The "Dead End" histrionic ability, and my family never thought that I could act. They wouldn't even take me to an agent's office. But I went to a "Dead End" rehearsal with my brother, Bernard, who was in it. I happened to read a scene lines and Sidney Kingsley gave me a small part. Then in a few days he decided to put me in the important part of Spilt.

I thought that was unethical; besides I liked the guy who had the role. So I didn't study it until one Saturday. Mr. Kingsley said we would open Monday. I was very busy that week-end learning lines. But after the play got to running I ad libbed my part until it had little semblance to the original.

Ball-and-Chain Angle

Although the play was a hit, Gorey said, "I still didn't dream that I was destined for Hollywood." He likes it well enough, and has brought his parents and two young brothers and a sister here. "I don't like to see movies, though," he continued. "I'd go to only eight or ten a year, but my girl-friend likes them, so I have to drag along."

"Sure I've got a girl—steady for six months now. It was a tennis court meeting and she's a college girl, not an actress. There's nothing stopping her from getting married assuming she'd accept me—except the old ball-and-chain angle. I just don't like the angle of having to come home and explain all about what I've been doing and where I've been. Also, a want $2000 clear, and a good contract, before I take the plunge."

That's exactly what he said. Mr. Gorey is articulate and proud of it. He is even literary, and would like to be a professional writer.

He is working on a screen story and has written a lot of poems, two of which were published in national magazines. He is a little ashamed of these verses and won't show them to anybody. They are all word-pictures, he says, of things that impress him, such as a lightning storm, a drought, a sunrise, or the cremation of a dog.

They just come to him, practically written. He says he never would have the patience to really work at such junk.

Rocket

Leo is a son of the stage company, Bernard Gorey, and probably is 20 or 21 years old now, although he doesn't look it.

Once he tried being a jockey, but lasted only two weeks as an $8 apprentice.

"Beginning in 1934," he said, "I worked in a plumbing shop, beginning at $6 a week and going up to $18. Then I went into 'Dead End,' on clauses about Il Duce's Fascism. In the light of present developments, his views are singularly striking, for says the author "long before he (Mussolini) came into power, he said clearly that the Fascist revolution was not a social revolution but a means of organizing Italy for international war and conquest, a Santa Guerra, which would liberate Italy from the powerful nations of the earth."

Mr. Beals concludes his book with a background to the war in Spain. The whole is a story to jar you from beginning to end. P. G. F.

New Drug Helps Control Malaria

New Yellow Dye Harmless Except for Temporary Coloring

AUGUSTA, Ga.—(AP)—From the results of an experiment in malaria control by mass treatment two Georgia doctors conclude Wednesday that a comparatively new chemical compound was superior to other previously-used anti-malarial drugs.

In a joint report to the Medical Association of Georgia, Dr. C. F. Holton of Savannah and Dr. M. E. Wischesser of Brunswick described the experiment conducted last year near Ways, Ga., in Bryan county, a section where malaria is prevalent.

A total of 1,848 persons, including whites and negroes, took the treatment and 79 per cent of all types of malarial infection were cured by a five-day course. The curative rate increased to 99 per cent after an additional three day treatment with plasmoquin, administered in resistant cases.

The report said that indicated much less tendency towards relapse after five or six months.

Atabrine, a yellow dye, was described as being harmless, although participants in the experiment were warned it might cause slight temporary discoloration of the skin in some cases.

This action does not mean necessarily the projects will be carried out. After WPA projects have been cleared by both the president and the comptroller general, they are added to an eligible list from which state WPA administrators may choose those to be executed with funds available to them.

Radio Is Potential Dictatorship Aid

Newspapers View With Alarm One Man Addressing Nation

NEW YORK—(AP)—President Roosevelt's use of the radio for "fire-side talks" to the nation was cited in a report to the American Newspaper Publishers Association Wednesday as a precedent which, in future years, "might encourage dictatorship."

The report of the committee on radio, which will be brought up for action later by Edwin S. Friendly of the New York Sun, reviewed what it described as "cumulative evidence as to potentialities of radio for the destruction of democracy" and said: "The inescapable task of the American press is to guard against any encroachment upon American democracy by the federal government with radio as an instrument of political power."

Another report expressed concern over the future of "the whole Social Security program as it is now operating." The report, drafted by a committee headed by A. V. Miller of the New York Herald Tribune, said that tremendous sums collected by the government for social security had "actually been spent on current government expenses" and added: "In spite of having spent all these tremendous sums that have been collected for the purposes of social security on every other form of current expense, we have still had tremendous government deficits."

Miss Granville will get a high school diploma next year, but expects to go on studying languages and literature and history under instructors at the studio school.

She already has had five years of French and, incidentally, five years of dancing and five years of piano instruction. Now she wants to study voice and designing. She already designs most of her own clothes and has a good deal to say about her movie wardrobe.

Five feet one-half inch tall, with-out hooks, Bonita is anxious to grow another inch so that she can wear clothes more smartly. For years she has been stretching every day, trying to grow faster.

Before Samuel Goldwyn cast her as the sly, lying little poisoner of other people's lives in "These Three," early in 1936, Bonita had played a lot of ordinary, little-girl roles and was wondering whether she'd ever have a chance to act. The meanie part provided a chance for an emotional display that seldom comes to youngsters of 13, and for a year thereafter she was in demand for similar roles, some of which were especially written into stories for her.

Lately, though, her parts have been more or less alternately sympathetic and heavy. Her current part in "In Everywoman's Life" isn't much of anything—just a fill-in assignment until the Nancy Drew series is ready for her.

Her favorite actress is Bette Davis, who also has done very well in vixen parts. "There's nobody, though, that I particularly want to be like," Miss Granville said. "And I don't care much whether I do comedy or drama, so long as the parts are substantial. That's when acting's fun."

Palms to Give Play

The junior play will be presented at Palms High School Friday night, April 29. The play "Speeding Along" is a comedy farce in three acts, written by Katherine Kavanaugh, and it promises to be one of the best entertainments of the year.

Here is a list of the characters: Bobby Larrabee, storekeeper at Larrabee Cove—Catherine Hamilton; Wiggins, an orphan adopted by Bobby—Charles B. Buckabee; Charlie Dogbury, telegraph operator—Doyle Mayton; Molly Malloy, reporter on the Sentinel—Mina Marie Hubbard; Grady, Bobby's grandmother—Florida Putman.

Paul Stevens, owner of speed boat "Flying Cloud"—Dorris Henderson; Jack Curtis, a stranger—Francis Simmons.

The Professor, fond of fishing—Aaron McClellan; Miss Lavonia, fond of the professor—Frances Huett; Thornton Halliway, owner of speed

Roomy but Not Costly

This small home has a room arrangement that allows for the use of a maximum amount of space. Rooms are larger than usually encountered in a small dwelling. Living room is ornamented by an open fireplace. The top floor is unfinished but has space for additional bedrooms.

The house is located at Rochelle Park, N. J., and was appraised at $5,750. The Federal Housing Administration has insured a loan of $3,500 on the house. The mortgage will be fully amortized in monthly installments of $28.45 over a period of 19 1/4 years. These payments included interest and principal.

Birds should be taught to roost as early as possible. Mite infested poles cause discomfort to birds and may result in fatality if not arrested. Purina Roost Paint should be spread on the poles about 15 minutes before the birds go to roost. It comes with a handy brush for applying attached to the can top.

Standard weights show that the average 6 weeks' old chick weighs around 11 or 12 ounces. Actual records from thousands of chicks grown on Purina Startena show that well fed chicks weigh up to a pound and a quarter at 6 weeks. Extra weight at this time gives chicks an advantage in growing into profitable layers.

Brooder Pneumonia kills hundreds of chicks each spring. This disease occurs most frequently among chicks ten days to three weeks old. General listlessness and difficult breathing are symptoms. The best treatment is to remove all moldy litter and wet, moldy feed, since these are the causes of pneumonia, and disinfect the house thoroughly with a solution of Purina Cresofec. Infected birds should be flushed with Epsom Salts—one pound of salts to every 400 pounds of chicks. Salts may be mixed in crumbly mash or given in drinking water. Best cure for the disease is prevention. Keep feed fresh and house and equipment clean. Frequent disinfecting with Cresofec solution keeps down infection.

Unless chicks are in direct sunshine from which they absorb Vitamin D they need additional amounts of Vitamin D supplied through feed. This vitamin is absolutely essential to health and growth, and can easily be made available to chicks through cod liver oil in the starting feed. Purina scientists test the cod liver oil put into Startena by feeding it to live animals and chicks in the laboratories to determine its potency.

Below To Give Play Arrangements are nearing completion this week for presenting "Wild Ginger," the senior play of the class of '38 Bodewig High School to be given Friday night, April 28.

"Wild Ginger" is expected to be among the best plays ever presented at Bodewig. It is offered as a climax to three years of amateur acting for most of the actors.

"Wild Ginger" is a three act comedy drama by the same author and practically the same cast as "Beds on a String," which the senior class presented last fall.

Beneath the comical surface acting by Wuzzy Walker, the deep pathos of the real plot will hold the interest of the audience as love, happiness, and contentment are shown to be the truly great things of life rather than money or wealth.

"Wild Ginger" is sponsored by Miss La Velle Bussy, senior sponsor. The cast will include: Jake Tallman, a miserly old Pinchenny—Leroy Cameron; Geoffrey Freeman, a young man of hero type—Nolan Caudle; Sanford Lakey, a man of extravagant habits—Junius Luckabee; Marwood Lakey, Sanford Lakey's son—Elmore Dunn; Wuzzy Walker, a would be chiropractor—Terrell Caudle; Mr. Peterson, a middle-aged groceryman—Clifton Burns; Virginia Tallman, Jake Tallman's daughter—Dorothy Cassady; Miss Rachel Lee, Ginger's best friend—Jane Barbore; Miss Stanley, a health nurse—Sylvia June May; Miz Walker, Wuzzy's mother—Hazel Putman; Bonita Lakey, Marwood's sister—Marvonne Mattison.

Bodewig High School The senior class motored to Hope Monday afternoon, they had supper in town and went to the theater afterward. The group was accompanied by Miss La Velle Bussy, senior sponsor. Professor and Mrs. Floyd Regan were still absent from school last week due to the illness of Mr. Reagan's father.

The high school baseball team played their first matched game of the year Saturday afternoon when they met the Bodewig No. 1 team, otherwise known as Little Bodewig. The high school team had had very little practice, but featured a first inning spree establishing a 3-0 score. The local team held a steady lead until the last of the ninth when the Little Bodewig team trailing 6-10 stage a 3 run rally to tie the game 9-10 for the high school team.

This was the first game of the season for both teams. Remarkable pitching ability was displayed by J. H. Butler of Bodewig and Ermon Allen of Little Bodewig.

The school lineup was: Bailey, C; J. H. Butler, p; N. Butler, lb; A. Butler, 2b; O. Butler, ss; Swiney, 3b; Dunn, lf; Martin, cf; and Caudle lf; Luckabee substituted for Caudle.

The Little Bodewig lineup included: Arterberry, c; E. Allen, p; Burns, lb; Bailey, 2b; W. Mullins, ss; J. D. Allen, 3b; McConel, lf; O. Mullins, cf; and Dorman, rf; with Russell, A. G. Fuller and Lindell Fuller as substitutes.

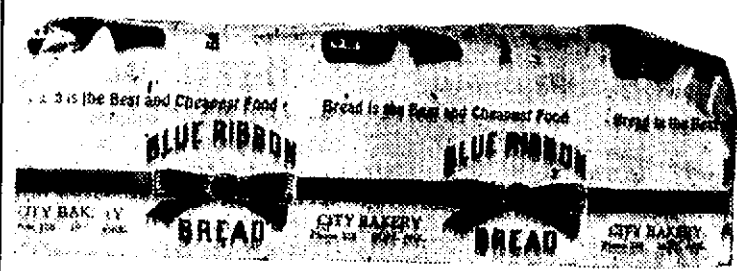

The game was played on the Little Bodewig diamond.

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—The Little Rock Travelers defeated the Memphis Chicks Wednesday night 4 to 3 in the rubber game of their three-game series and chalked up the fourth consecutive series to their credit since the opening of the current baseball season.

Kola Sharpe, veteran right-hander, let the Tribe down with seven hits and quenched a nine-inning rally, in which the invaders shoved over two runs, by striking out Finchhitter Monzo with the tying run on second base. It was Sharpe's third victory for the season. The Travelers opened a four game series with Birmingham here Thursday night.

Canal to Be Restored For Vacationists

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Trains now haul the coal and lumber that was once carried from the west through Cumberland gap in the Alleghenies, to the Atlantic on the Chesapeake and Ohio canal.

But the 186-mile canal is being taken over by the Interior Department, which will turn it into a vacation land to haul the canoes of vacationists. The 22 miles running out of Washington will be restored to revive the picture of how our forebears traveled and shipped their merchandise before the Civil war.

There are locks, aqueducts and old toll houses along the canal which are still sound and which will be restored in the future.

The canal was built in 1828 and remained in commercial use until 1924. At its peak, around 1870, it hauled as much as a million tons of coal each year from the mountain coal fields to the eastern seaboard.

Like Meyers

DETROIT.—Rudy York, running after a foul fly, presents a bald spot, and some of the heaviest heaving and puffing since the days of Chick Meyers, the 250-pound Indian who was the late Christy Mathewson's battery partner with the New York Giants years ago.

York, whose back is as wide and that he has a bent nose, weighs 209 pounds, and moves like it. Luckily for the Detroit backstop, he hits like it, too.

The Detroit player doesn't look like a catcher. He drops too many pitches, and his throwing is not that expected of a receiver for a team which hopes to beat out the New York Yankees.
